

AgForce Projects to discuss key issues affecting landholders in CQ Region

Media release: 26 August 2014

AgForce Projects is heading to the Central Queensland to deliver free multi-topic information sessions that will discuss key issues affecting landholders in the region.

The sessions provide vital information for landholders including coal seam gas (CSG), feral pest control, property computer mapping and Grazing Best Management Practice (BMP).

AgForce Projects Manager Sue Dillon said the multi-topic sessions were extremely useful for landholders being affected by these issues or interested in getting more information about the projects.

“These sessions will discuss AgForce Projects current initiatives including feral pest control on property; property computer mapping; Grazing BMP and the CSG Project team will provide an update on industry developments.”

We recognise that our projects complement each other and landholders that are affected by some or all of these issues can benefit greatly from attending one of our multi-topic sessions,” Ms Dillon said.

“For example, property computer mapping can help identify and plan farm infrastructure, productive areas and future developments as well as assist in assessing the potential impacts from CSG activities, coordinating feral pest control and achieving industry standard for Grazing BMP.”

Grazing BMP is AgForce Projects newest initiative, after being launched in 2013.

At the session attendees can find out more about the online self-assessment tool, which is designed to help graziers improve business performance and profitability.

Landholders will also have the opportunity to learn more about which feral pest control are most effective; receive an update on property computer mapping and GPS; as well as find out more about CSG and mining developments in the region.

The sessions will also incorporate panel discussion to give attendees a chance to ask questions in smaller groups.

These sessions are being held in:

- Gayndah – 15 September, 4pm to 8pm
- Theodore – 16 September, 2pm to 6pm
- Rolleston – 17 September, 2pm to 6pm

These sessions are free of charge and registrations are essential. Visit www.agforceprojects.org.au to register or call 3238 6048.

These information sessions are delivered by the AgForce Projects’ team with the support of the Queensland Government, the Fitzroy Basin Association, the Gasfields Commission Queensland, the Queensland Resources Council and Australian Petroleum Production and Exploration Association.
